

Best of Homes & Improvements

Create your dream living space – whether you're putting the final touches to your grand design or refreshing a room, here are some of the best ways to improve your home

Outdoor luxury for contemporary lifestyles

With more people working from home, the desire for comfortable, separate spaces has never been greater. The answer to adding space without moving?

Your garden.

For 30 years, Breeze House has led the way in luxury outdoor living. As the original creators of the iconic modern-day thatched garden gazebo, their signature open-sided design brings you closer to nature while offering the comfort and craftsmanship of a cosy retreat.

A Breeze House is endlessly versatile and provides the perfect setting for the entire family and every lifestyle: whether as a breakout space for teenagers, an extra room to work, a peaceful spot to recharge or a stylish, guest-ready area to entertain friends and family. With a wide range of customisation options, it not only looks beautiful but also feels personal.

Handcrafted in the UK using sustainable materials, each Breeze House is built to last and designed for year-round enjoyment. It offers shade and privacy in summer and shelter to extend your living space through cooler months, with weatherproof accessories such as side panels, integrated heating and soft lighting.

Create the perfect custom home for sustainable living

Established in 1960, WeberHaus is renowned for creating bespoke, German-engineered sustainable homes in the UK. Their comprehensive turnkey service combines custom design with cutting-edge, energy-efficient technology, ensuring comfort and sustainability.

WeberHaus makes your dream home a reality with precision-engineered timber frame houses built to the highest standards of sustainable living.

One such success story is that of Cat Miller and her husband. They had lived in both the UK and USA before finding their dream plot nestled between a picturesque valley and a hill. Cat envisioned a modern take on classical architecture, drawing from English influences and the saltbox timber homes of her native Connecticut. After struggling to find an architect who embraced her vision, she met WeberHaus architect Mr Rosseck, who immediately understood her ideas. Cat's aspiration was a grand period villa blending a traditional street-facing façade with a strikingly contemporary rear, all while maintaining classic lines.

Once the prefabricated elements were ready, construction was impressively swift: the structural shell was erected in just four days, followed by six months of internal fit-out tailored to the home's size and bespoke features.

Sustainability was central to the project. The timber was responsibly sourced, and the house features solar PV panels, mechanical ventilation with heat recovery (MVHR), a heat pump and intelligent building management systems reducing energy use.

Reflecting on her experience, Cat said: "Even now, I wouldn't alter a thing, I absolutely love living here. Despite its size, the house feels homely and comfortable."

Light, space and the art of the 'forever home'

With more than two decades of experience, architect Corrie Jones has earned a reputation for transforming unremarkable houses into spacious, light-filled contemporary homes of lasting quality. His RIBA Chartered Practice uncovers a property's hidden potential, combining design excellence with a clear understanding of how people want to live.

Corrie says: "For us, it's about balancing light, proportion and flow". From elegant extensions to complete reinventions, his designs are calm, characterful and enduring.

Working with clients across the country — from London townhouses to rural Norfolk estates — Corrie brings the same considered approach to every project. Each home begins with listening: understanding how clients live and want to feel. The result is a house that looks beautiful and works effortlessly. He explains: "The most successful homes quietly enrich everyday life".

Whether reimagining a period property or creating a new build, Corrie's hallmark is balance and light. Subtle materials, layered textures and precise detailing shape spaces that evolve with the seasons: elegant, timeless, personal.

In a world of shifting trends, his architecture endures: homes designed not just for now, but for life — true forever homes

Premium smart heating that doubles as interior design

Heating should do more than keep you warm. It should enhance the space, complement interior design and adapt intelligently to your lifestyle. That's the philosophy behind Rointe's premium collection: the EONIQ WiFi radiator, NEO WiFi towel rail and PALAOS WiFi vertical radiator.

Each product has been redefined to deliver a new user experience with a sleek three-button touch panel and LED indicator for simple, elegant control. With outdated, clunky displays gone, all three connect effortlessly to the Rointe Nexa app, giving you complete control from your smartphone, whether it's scheduling, monitoring consumption or adjusting settings on the go.

Discover how smart, stylish heating can redefine your home. Visit rointe.co.uk to explore the full premium range.

Handcrafted, luxury garden rooms

Back in the first lockdown, when the world hit pause, neighbours Andy, Sam, and Matt, found themselves at a crossroads. With careers on hold and time to reflect, they were yearning for a new project.

One sunny Sunday, over socially distanced drinks, the lightbulb moment happened...

All three had already built and were constantly using their own garden rooms throughout lockdown and, before long, friends and family were asking if they could have one too. This was their new opportunity: to offer premium garden rooms built properly, professionally and with better customer service than any of them had ever experienced before in construction.

They brought together their experience from totally different industries and poured it into something that felt more personal: a company built on trust, friendship, and a real desire to do things better.

Traditionally made door canopies, porches and verandas

Founded in 2017 by Peter Young and Arthur Biden, The Zinc and Copper Canopy Company (ZAC) crafts door canopies, porches and verandas using exquisite zinc and copper work. From stunning bespoke entrances to versatile year-round outdoor living spaces, ZAC's design team provide options that thoughtfully match your home, helping create a harmonious flow between your interior and exterior areas.

ZAC's product range not only exudes style but also embodies sustainability, durability and the highest quality.

Their skilled tinsmiths and metalworkers meticulously handcraft the bespoke designs with superb precision using a combination of the latest machinery and traditional artisanal techniques. Their canopy roofs are made using curved real zinc or copper on a powder-coated steel frame, while their porches and verandas include a wide range of supports from simple stanchion designs to ornate fretwork.

ZAC's dedication to delivering excellence extends to each and every one of their products, all carefully crafted in their workshop.
